Welcome to Panty Explosion!

Panty Explosion is a game where players work together to tell a story about teenage school girls who have psychic powers and fight demons. We'll sit in a circle and take turns creating scenes, describing what our characters do and maybe acting out their actions and speaking in their voices. If you like telling stories, acting, or using your imagination then you're going to have a ton of fun. A game of Panty Explosion can be super intense, dramatic and suspenseful, but it will also often be very funny!

A game of Panty Explosion will usually last about 3 hours, and if we want we can play again later and continue our story. One of us will take the role of Superintendent, acting as a narrator and a guide for the other players. The rest of us will play Students.

What will we need to play?

To play Panty Explosion you'll need a copy of this book (of course) and some dice (the normal, 6-sided dice you can find in any board game will work just fine). You'll also need a pencil and a School Record sheet for each player, which you can find at atarashigames.com. A comfortable place to play is also very important. A big table or comfortable living room will work great, and an empty floor does in a pinch. A school club room, the library, local parks or a quiet cafe are good choices too. Just make sure that you choose a location where everyone can feel safe and comfortable, and won't be embarrassed by doing things that afterward may seem a little silly. Make sure to have beverages and snacks handy if your group likes that kind of thing.

But what is it about?

Deep in the sprawling heart of Tokyo there is a mysterious, infamous high school where the supernatural is just another fact of life. A dangerously haunted place where restless spirits stalk the halls and demons roam the school grounds. Some say the school was built on top of the remains of an abandoned Shinto shrine, while others whisper of ancient curses and wartime atrocities. One thing is certain, the school has become both a magnet and a haven for the strange, bizarre, and supernatural.

There's a special group of students who don't have the luxury of ignoring the bizarre and sinister threats that plague their school. When the blood thirsty Demon Prince of Shinjuku comes looking for souls or the swim team is once again possessed by the ancient spirits of vengeful ninja, it's up to the few brave young women with barely restrained psychic powers to defend their classmates. These are the stories of the psychic school girls, tragic young women doomed to lives of violent combat, using powers they can barely control to fight monstrosities whose existence they can scarcely comprehend!

Psychic powers are as much a curse as they are a gift, and most psychic school girls have little understanding or control of their strange abilities. Since psychic powers often manifest themselves in strange and unsettling ways, most psychic girls hide their powers from their friends. Many are driven to suicide or insanity. Some schoolgirls revel in their power, using it to humiliate and hurt their rivals. These girls are often the quickest to draw the attention of the demons, ghosts and other monsters who crave not just their psychic energy, but also their flesh and minds that have been tainted by malevolence and hatred.

Even without brain-eating monsters and deranged teenage psychics the Japanese school system is notoriously daunting, with demanding exams and fierce competition to get into the best schools. Many students suffer breakdowns under the exhaustive workload and pressure from their family and teachers to succeed, or fall victim to vicious bullying from classmates. Compared to the terror of academic failure, fighting flesh-eating ghosts and tentacled shadow beasts is almost a vacation!
